Message to the Class of 1966

It is with a sense of pride and satisfaction that I extend congratulations to you as your graduation day approaches. Your parents and teachers have watched you grow and mature during these past twelve years. They, too, are to be congratulated for their guidance which has culminated in a class of worthwhile citizens of whom the City of Woburn can well be proud.

The class of 1966 and possibly two or three of the following graduating classes, will be the last to remember vividly one of the great men in the history of our country, who in the short span of three years made a lasting impression for good upon the whole world.

In your history books you have learned of many great and admired leaders of our country. You read about Washington, Jefferson, and Franklin of Revolutionary days. From the time you entered school you saw Lincoln's face on the walls of the classrooms, and later you read and learned to appreciate his love for humanity in the Gettysburg Address.

However, these men and their deeds were not of your time, and while you admire them for their greatness, it is sometimes difficult to visualize them as living, breathing human beings.

You are fortunate indeed to have lived in an age in which you could see and hear a man about whom future generations will read and honor as you do these men of the past.

I can wish nothing more fitting for this Senior Class than that each of you emulate the characteristics which made John F. Kennedy one of the most admired and beloved individuals in the history of the world.

There may not be a future president among the class of 1966, but whatever your future, or wherever it lies, those qualities of courage, devotion to country, love of your fellow man and the use in full measure of every God-given talent which you possess, can go far in bringing about the kind of country for which President Kennedy gave his life.

He was meant not to complete the program which his mind had conceived, but rather, to show the way. He has handed the torch to you, the new generation. May each of you go forth with a determination to do his share towards reaching the goal set for us, — namely, a better world.

By doing this we can say of John Fitzgerald Kennedy — "He did not die in vain."

To the Class of 1966:

The task of organizing, preparing, and publishing this excellent Yearbook of the Class of 1966, required the closest cooperation of students, staff, and the community. That it is such a success is testimony to the competencies of the professional staff advisers, and the students who made it a reality.

A yearbook has been described merely as a pictorial record primarily of the senior year of high school. It is far more significant to regard it as a permanent memento of the friendships, hopes, and desires of swiftly fleeing days in a most precious time of life. The friends and occasions of times past that the book recalls will always retain nostalgic memories of your days at Woburn High.

True, 1966 is a time of trial and crisis. The future is uncertain for all. Yet it has always been so, and a study of the past shows that in the most perilous days, the times called forth the men who made civilization's greatest advances.

It is fitting, therefore, on this eve of graduation in June, 1966, that we renew ourselves with the faith of those who preceded us in our school, our community, and our nation, rejecting despair and seeking the challenge of new opportunity for service to our fellow man.

To each I offer this prayerful wish:

"May the roads rise with you
And the wind be always at your back
And may the Lord
Hold you in the hollow of His Hand."

Principal

Office Staff Functions Efficiently

Organization is an important part of all efficiently run systems and Woburn High is no exception. We have two very capable people, Mr. John P. Mahoney and his assistant, Mrs. Elizabeth Doherty, to maintain this organization. Mr. Mahoney, Registrar of the school and secretary to the principal, co-ordinates all the administrative business that occurs in the office. Together with Mrs. Doherty, he gives invaluable assistance to both students and faculty. Always courteous and always helpful, they continue to serve our school with a sincere willingness to help.

Lillian Kearns

Students' Health Protected

Mrs. Lillian Kearns, our new school nurse, has the duty of watching over the health of every student in Woburn High School. Throughout the year she runs checks on hearing and sight and is responsible for keeping a general health record of each student throughout his four years in high school. She also assisted, this past winter, with the administration of flu shots to teachers. Her friendly manner puts all at ease, and her tireless efforts to safeguard the health of students deserve our sincere gratitude.

Varied Duties for Dean of Girls

Miss Helen A. Salmon is continually kept busy with her many responsibilities. As dean of girls, she attends all school social functions. Besides her tasks as dean, she is an advisor to the National Honor Society, serves on the Scholarship Rating Board, and also determines the selections of the Women's Club representatives.

New Counselors Help to Improve Service

The addition of two new counselors to the Guidance Department this year, Miss Mary Murray and Mr. Stephen Calabro, has reduced the ratio of students to counselors to four hundred to one. Therefore, the department is able to hold more interviews and to improve services.

A guidance workshop was held in October for all junior and senior high school teachers. Major developments in the field were discussed, and important methods and ideas were explored for dealing more effectively with student problems.

During the week of mid-year examinations, the Guidance Office administered a test to each class. These tests measured such skills as reading comprehension and mental ability, and gave information regarding students' occupational interests and aptitudes.

From the results of tests such as these, students can be directed toward courses best suited to their needs and capabilities with the hope that pupils' frustrations will be reduced and their accomplishments increased.

New Means of Expression Explored

Through the potent direction of Mr. Frank Newark, assisted by Mr. Ted Johnson, approximately two hundred and thirty students received instruction in Art this year. Mr. Johnson joined the staff in September to further utilize the extensive facilities available for painting and crafts.

Annually, the Art curriculum has been made more inclusive, and this year was no exception. Students received instruction in drawing and painting in various media, including pen and ink, charcoal, pastels, tempera, oils, and water color; in the theory and application of major movements in art history; and in creative design as demonstrated in ceramics, batik, enameling, and architecture.

A thorough background is offered to students planning on further study toward careers in commercial art, and for all students wishing to develop their artistic abilities.

Varied Program Offered in Biology

The biology program at Woburn High School has expanded over the past several years. The courses offered are designed to meet the diversified needs and capabilities of the student body. The three major areas of study are: Advanced Placement Biology, College Preparatory Biology and General Biology.

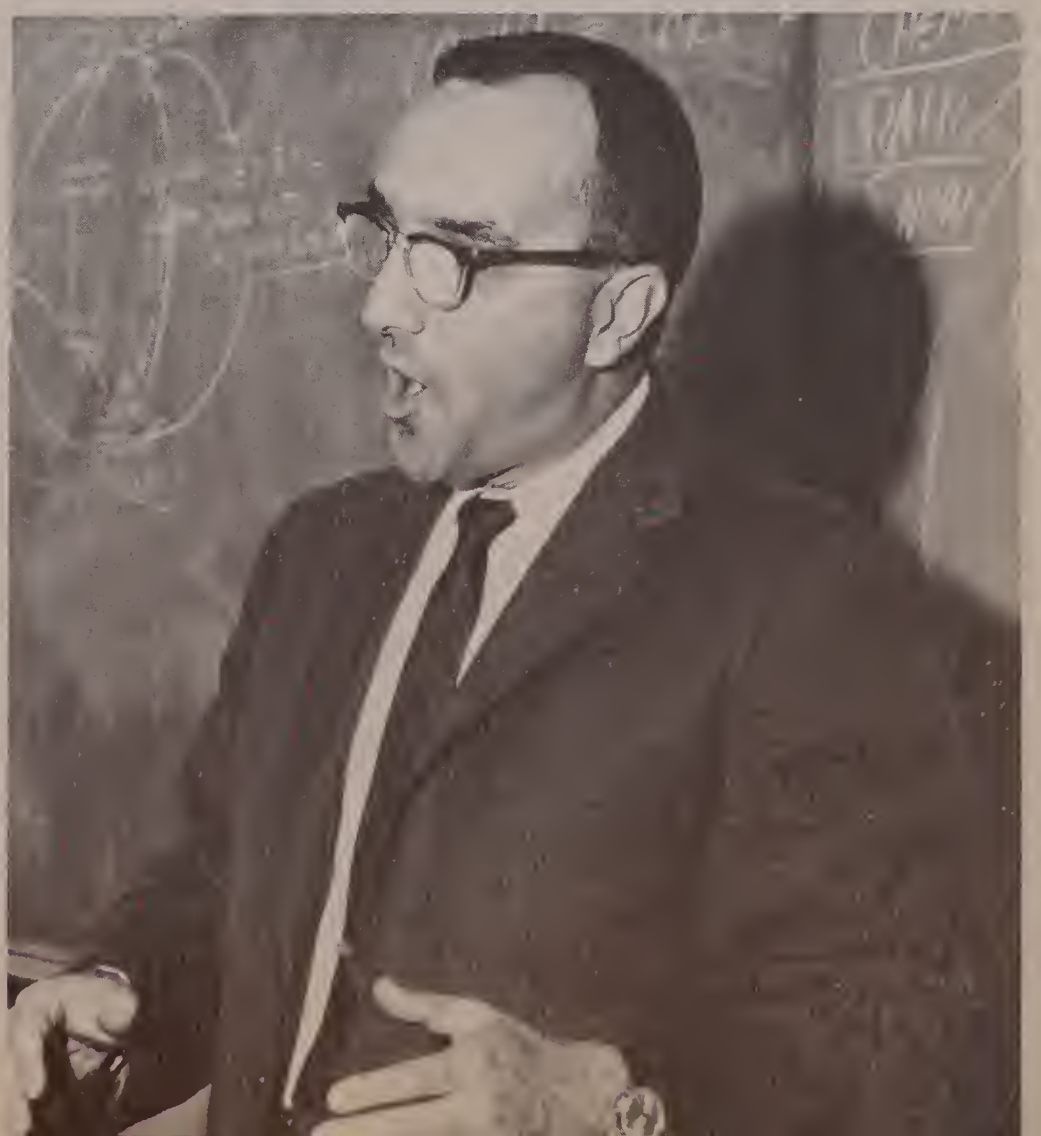

The Advanced Placement Course, which is equivalent to a freshman college course, enables the student to fulfill his college requirement, thereby broadening his subject selection in college.

The College Preparatory Course provides the necessary college admission credits or units. It gives the background needed for College Achievement Tests and continued study in the field.

The General Biology program is designed to familiarize the student with the basic concepts of biology that can be applied to everyday life.

Mr. Gumbleton relates one his "famous" stories!

Sensitivity to Written and Spoken Word Developed

The student of English at Woburn High School is imbued, through the many phases of the program, with an acute sensitivity to the written and spoken word. When his course is completed he is equipped to handle the many situations in which a good command of the language is demanded.

In the world of work he is capable of understanding business problems, analyzing them, and solving them by means of well-written and correctly spoken language. He is able to plan and organize business messages and has at his command a knowledge of the fundamental uses of business terminology.

In the world of books he has been trained to recognize ambiguous words, uncover buried assumptions, draw reasonable conclusions, and make supportable generalizations. Through constant use of these analytical skills, he has acquired the discipline of critical thinking which ultimately makes him a better student, employee, and citizen.

This year has witnessed two major changes in the Business Education Department — one aimed at improving the physical facilities, the other aimed at the training of Woburn High School students to enable them to better fit into a competitive and ever-changing business environment.

The typing and office machines rooms were renovated to render a more congenial atmosphere to routine business activities. Renovations were especially necessary to accommodate the increasing number of students and the new and more efficient office machines.

The extensive courses offered in Curriculum IV include such subjects as secretarial and applied typing, stenography, office assignments, and office machines. These courses train the students in these skills, as well, as in general office machines.

To the usual curriculum of office machines, some theory and practice of data processing was added. Familiarity with data processing equipment is now one of the most needed skills in the business field. Most offices, both large and small, now use this new equipment in some way. Here in the high school, marking, taking attendance and the keeping of records have all been made more accurate and less time consuming by use of these new methods. Students supplement their classroom instruction with exposure to the use of the equipment in the school.

The high school benefits directly from the fine training in office skills given to the students, since selected students are assigned to the office to assist with the myriad details necessary to insure a smoothly functioning school. These details include distribution of "The Reflector," the daily bulletin, sorting of mail and messages, filing, and some typing.

Extensive Program for Future Homemakers

Within the past few years, the Home Economics Department has seen many changes. The department has been completely renovated and now provides its students and teachers with the best equipment and facilities possible. Also, a new Home Economics teacher has been added to the staff, Miss Mollianne Osborn.

Aside from teaching the basics of cooking and sewing, many other phases of successful homemaking are taught in depth, such as nutrition and meal planning, fashion and design. Yes, the department is a very active one. It sponsors the Hi-Teen Fashion Club for seniors taking the Home Economics course and offers these girls a field trip, as well as occasional speakers and interesting programs. Then, nearing the end of the school year, Miss Dunbury's annual fashion show produces an evening of information and pride as the girls demonstrate their sewing abilities.

The philosophy of the department states that home economics is needed by every girl. It provides preparation and psychological understanding of one's self in forming worthwhile relationships in society. In total, home economics prepares a girl for independence and marriage, with a psychological foundation for self-understanding.

New Approach to Historical Problems

Under the direction of Miss Geraldine Soles, Woburn High School's Social Studies Department implemented new and varied programs this year. Courses were offered to help the student understand the heritage of his country and to become aware of his responsibilities as a citizen and future voter. To these ends, courses in Ancient History, World History, United States History, and Problems of Democracy were offered. In addition, an Advanced Placement Course in American History, concentrating upon developing the ability to analyze controversial and many-sided questions, both orally and in written form, is available to selected students.

The Social Studies Department, aware of its broad, ultimate aim to help young people learn to carry on their precious heritage of a free society, is always looking for new ways to stimulate students' interests. Therefore, this year the Social Studies Department took the lead in setting up a plan for teaching in which the instructions of Social Studies, English and other disciplines co-operated in presenting related subject matter. The teachers met with large groups of students for lectures, then broke up into their assigned sections for study and discussion of lecture material. Students and teachers are enthusiastic about the program and are very proud of past results and optimistic about future improvements.

New Voice and Choral Opportunities in Music

Through the skillful leadership of Mr. Edson L. Kimball and Mr. Robert J. Hodgson, our Music Department has been greatly expanded. Students with an interest in music are able to participate in many activities. Courses are offered in Chorus, Voice Training, and Music Theory. Both the upper and lower schools have separate Glee Clubs, in addition to the combined Glee Club.

Complementing the Glee Clubs, the Concert Choir and the Choraleers afford many students the opportunity to participate in other choral groups. The vocal groups' varied activities include participating in school programs, the Black and Orange Revue, and the Spring Concert.

Further, the band and orchestra follow a busy schedule. Not only do they take part in all school programs and football games, but they also lend their talents to such public functions as the recent Anniversary Celebration, the combined Andover-Burlington-Woburn Concert performed in Andover, and Woburn's inaugural ceremonies. Certainly the opportunities afforded interested students are not surpassed.

“Graphic Language” Key to New Products

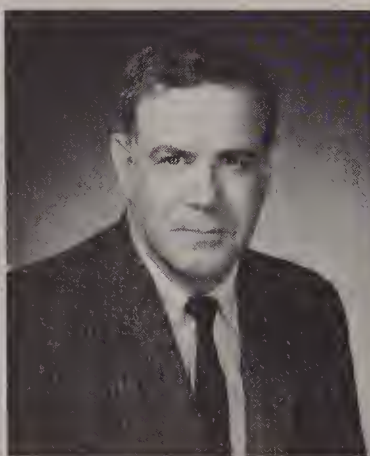

Students enrolled in Mechanical Drawing, under the instruction of Mr. Thomas Kilday and Mr. Charles O'Connor, are given the opportunity to learn the many and varied forms of drafting necessary to transform the designer's or engineer's ideas correctly into the graphic language. The graphic language is not in the form of words or sentences, but is in the form of drawings. From these drawings, highly skilled technicians, draftsmen, are able to assist in transforming symbols on paper into marketable products — products as simple as a paperweight or as complex as the latest space-age hardware.

Practical Skills Stressed in Shops

In the metal shops, Mr. William Mahoney teaches the technique of reading drawings and prints, the way to economically set up a job, the characteristics of basic materials used in the shop, and, lastly, the best way to utilize industrial and occupational information.

Mr. Clifford Parker's woodworking program provides similar information to the students in this field. In both the metal and woodworking shops, the unit method is followed, whereby each student, in consultation with the teacher, chooses and works on a project geared to his particular taste and talent.

Printing and Graphic Arts, under the guidance of Mr. William Mini, provide opportunities for the practical application of knowledge acquired in other subjects.

Correlation of all Math Courses Underway

Under the effective leadership of Miss Virginia M. Hall, the Mathematics Department has several objectives. Among the most imperative are meeting the academic needs in all curricula; attempting to correlate the mathematics of elementary, junior, and senior high schools into a sequential course; and providing for the academic use of high school math in vocational use and consumer needs.

At present, there is a trend toward the teaching of modern mathematics at all academic levels. We now have an accelerated course whereby qualified juniors may enroll in Math 12. Next year, these students will be enrolled in Advanced Placement Math, a course equivalent to that given a college freshman.

Audio-Lingual Method Augmented by Cultural Studies

Our Foreign Language Department offers five language courses: French, German, Latin, Russian, and Spanish. This year, in addition to the audio-lingual approach in teaching, additional emphasis is being placed on the cultural aspects of the countries where each language is spoken. Culture — the study of native customs, geography, literature, and art — gives the student a deeper insight into the background of the ideas they will explore while reading the literature of these countries. This knowledge will help foster a true understanding of other peoples.

The department, under Mr. Norman Côté, is constantly modifying its program to meet the ever-changing needs of the student body. Next year, an additional French course will be offered for those students who began their study of French in elementary school.

These efforts, along with a capable staff and modern equipment, have combined to make the Woburn High School Foreign Language Department justly eminent in its area.

Lifelong Interest in Books Stimulated

Libraries are the repositories of knowledge and since the function of the school is to transmit knowledge, the school library is of prime importance to every student in the school. A wealth of books, periodicals, and pamphlets on every subject in the curriculum is available to aid the student and enrich his learning. It is in the library that the student learns how to engage in independent learning.

Through the instruction in the use of the library which is given to every student, he becomes familiar with a library and its resources, not only for the present but for the remainder of his life.

It is the remainder of his life which the library habit can most enhance, for, as a student, the time spent in the library is generally in search of material for assignments. At this point he has little time left over for the pleasure of browsing, reading, and indulging in personal preference. But as the preparatory stage of life ends, and adult life begins, the library can provide a never ending source of relaxation and pleasure.

Bob and Dave utilize library materials to further knowledge.

Carry-Over Value of Sports Stressed in Gym Program

The boys' physical education program is geared to help the students develop athletic skills which will aid them in adjusting to the increased leisure time our automated society is providing. The regimen is designed to provide the basic training necessary for the enjoyment of adult physical hobbies, which may be enjoyed alone, or with others.

Realizing that the desires of most people are being satisfied away from the home, physical education instructors offer training in carry over sports such as tennis, golf, and badminton. The program aims to widen the ability of the student to participate in all types of recreational activities.

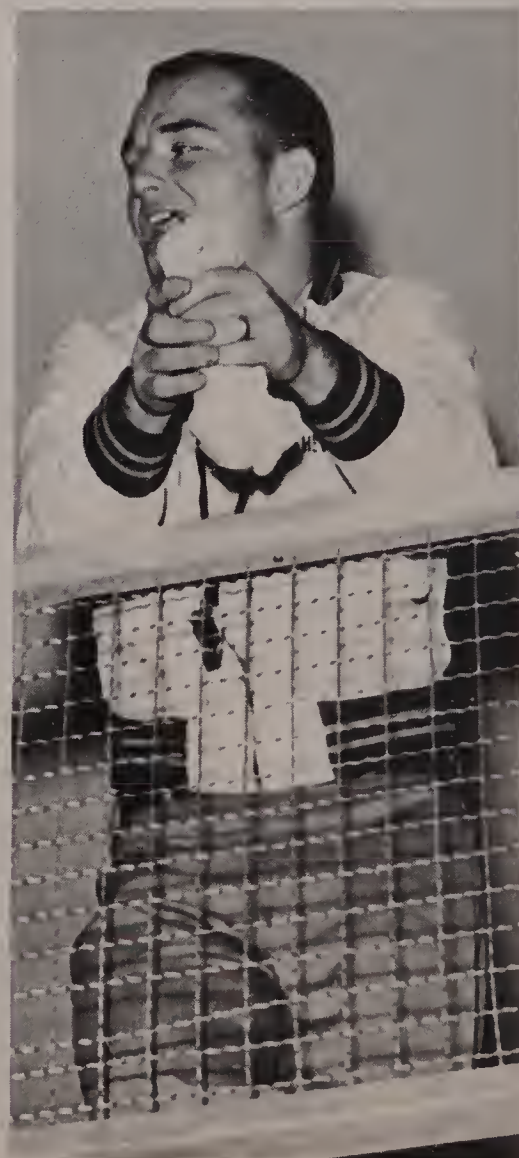

One of the more valuable adjuncts of the program is a ten weeks' course in first aid which is required of all senior boys. Demonstrations of treatments for burns, bruises, fractures and other injuries are provided. At the completion of the first aid course, each boy has the ability to care for minor injuries and the training to render initial treatment upon exposure to serious injuries.

The girls' gymnastic program is one of wide variety. The fall sports program includes soccer, field hockey, and flag football, which is the feminine version of the original game, the object being to capture your opponent's flag; hence preventing them from scoring a touchdown.

The winter confines the recreation and instruction to indoor events such as basketball, volleyball, badminton, and international dancing.

Spring is the season for archery, tennis, softball, and golf, a newly introduced sport.

Another aspect of this program which encourages initiative and good sportsmanship is the intramural program. This activity fosters intense competition among the teams. Letters and trophies are awarded to the most successful teams. Included in the intramural schedule are flag football, basketball, archery, tumbling, badminton, and softball. Certainly the girls' activities satisfy the goal of the department: To help the student learn to use her leisure time in the most healthful manner.

Lab Work Accentuates Science Program

In the past several years, Physical Science courses have taken on more meaning for students. Under the dynamic leadership of Mr. Robert Cohen, the Physical Science Department offers new depth in its courses. In addition to lecture periods, demonstrations are given of scientific phenomena and students in several courses are instructed in laboratory techniques. Since colleges require many laboratory periods, students are now able to familiarize themselves with techniques required for meaningful work in the laboratory.

To further complement the program, several honors courses have been added to the curriculum. In chemistry there is an honors class for juniors called "Chem Study," which is a modernized approach to chemistry, and in Physics there is an accelerated approach for seniors called "P.S.S.C. Physics" (Physical Science Study Committee), which covers physics in more detail and relates it to contemporary scientific investigation.

With our superb science program and facilities, we can be proud in knowing that it is turning out students who can enter, fully-prepared, into any facility for higher education.

PETER C. VAROUTSOS

Dedication

We, the Class of 1966, in reliving our high school years, remember particularly one member of the Woburn High School faculty. His devotion to his students and his supreme faith in their endeavors have been apparent to us throughout our four years at Woburn High. He has always encouraged us toward our goals by his sincere concern for us and by his enthusiastic support of our class.

Rarely does a teacher become acquainted with so many members of the student body; rarely is he considered not only a respected teacher, but also a close and valued friend. However rare this ideal, this individual has achieved it. His class has always been rewarding and his presence has always added much to school activities. We know that in attaining our ideal of a great teacher, he has given us more than he could possibly have received.

We know, too, that he will forever be remembered as our Sophomore Class Advisor, our Key Club Advisor, our teacher, and most of all, our friend. We hope that this small token will mean as much to him as he has meant to us — MR. PETER C. VAROUTSOS.

Venetian Setting for First Formal

Surrounded by replicas of the beauty and grace of Venice, our class celebrated its Junior Prom on Friday evening, May 7, 1965. The theme of the evening "Venetian Serenade," was tastefully evident in the decorations that transformed the upper school cafeteria into a romantic cafe, complete with checkered table cloths, candles in wine bottles, and suitable music. The first formal event for the class was a great success and ought to provide a store of memories for years to come.

Primaries, Recounts

As in past years, this year's elections saw keen competition in all classes. Speeches, posters, streamers, tags, novelties — all showed great enthusiasm on the part of both candidates and voters.

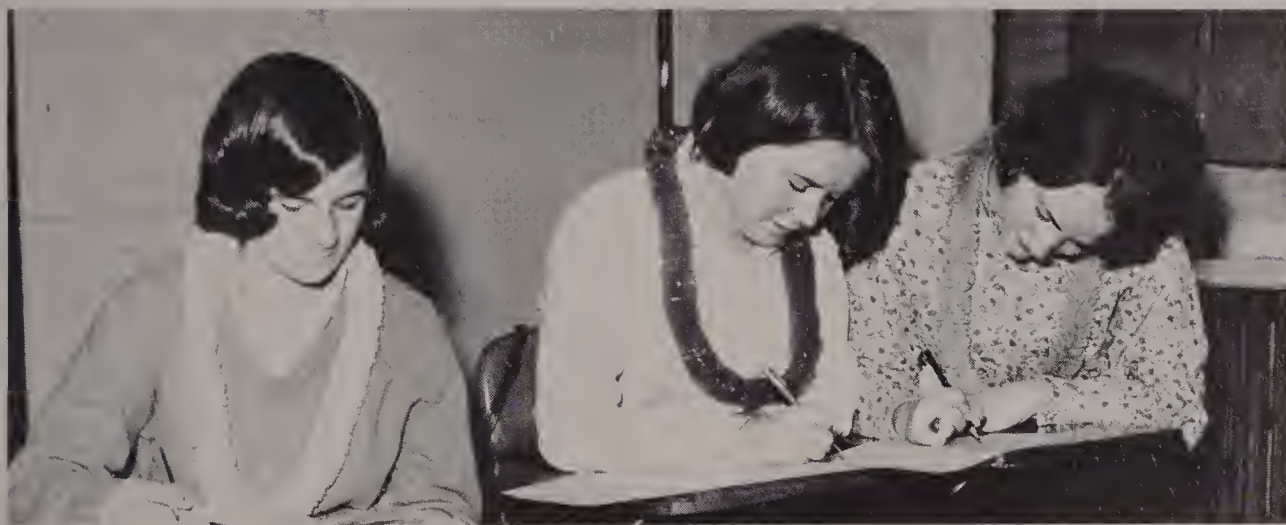

One innovation this year was the need for primary elections. Each class, excepting the Juniors, saw so many applicants to student government positions that the number of candidates had to be reduced to two for each office. This only stimulated competition and brought the excitement of campaigning to a frantic finish-line type of election. Indeed, even in the wake of victory or defeat, the decisions were so close that everyone was, in truth, a winner.

Recounts were another aspect of this year's elections which set them apart from other years elections. For instance, in the Junior Class a very tight race for President was climaxed by a recount and a new election. Such instances make apparent the unpredictable nature of politics and help to prepare the students for their future duties as citizens.

“A Child’s Christmas,” the 1966 Portrait of Christmas

On Friday evening, December 10, 1965, the Senior Class presented its annual Christmas Dance, “Portrait of Christmas.” The theme chosen for this year’s dance was “A Child’s Christmas,” and the upper school cafeteria was appropriately decorated by the class officers and dance committee. The story of “The Night Before Christmas” lettered in black on a white background, surrounded by Santa and his reindeer; and a Christmas list for teachers were among the imaginative decorations.

Members of the class and their guests danced to the music of Dick Brogna’s orchestra. One of the many highlights of the evening was Mr. Peter Varoutsos leading the dancers in traditional Greek steps.

A big surprise planned by the committee, an event that promises to be a regular feature of future Christmas dances, was the lighting of a beautiful twelve foot Christmas tree on the patio at ten o’clock.

Eleven o’clock arrived all too soon, marking the close of another social success for the class of 1966.

“Three on a Bench,” LaFave, Frongillo Take Prizes

On Friday evening, December 17, 1965, the freshman, sophomore, and junior class each presented its one act play. After weeks of preparation and rehearsals, “The Knave of Hearts,” “The Ugly Duckling,” and “Three on a Bench” were performed before a sell-out audience in the upper school auditorium. One of the newest school activities, the one act play competition is already one of the most popular.

The plays were sponsored by the Drama Guild under the direction of Mr. Edward J. LeClair. The imaginative scenery was provided by the Art Guild. A panel of judges selected Ralph Frongillo as best actor and Linda LaFave as best actress. The best play award was won by the junior class for their entertaining presentation of “Three on a Bench.”

The one-act play competition gives amateur thespians an opportunity to display their acting ability while fostering spirit and competition among classes. The plays are certain to remain one of the most popular annual events at Woburn High School in the years to come.

Mr. Kimball, Mark Radosta Survive Illness — the Show Goes on

On January 14 and 15, 1966, after weeks of rehearsals and preparation, the curtain went up on the Senior Class presentation of "Murder Takes the Veil."

During the final week of rehearsal the play was threatened by postponement. Both the director, Mr. Edson Kimball, and Mark Radosta, one of the leading men, became ill. Tension was high throughout the school as everyone wondered if the play would be postponed. But, true to the spirit of the theatre, and despite the fact that neither Mr. Kimball nor Mark had fully recovered, the show went on and was a great success.

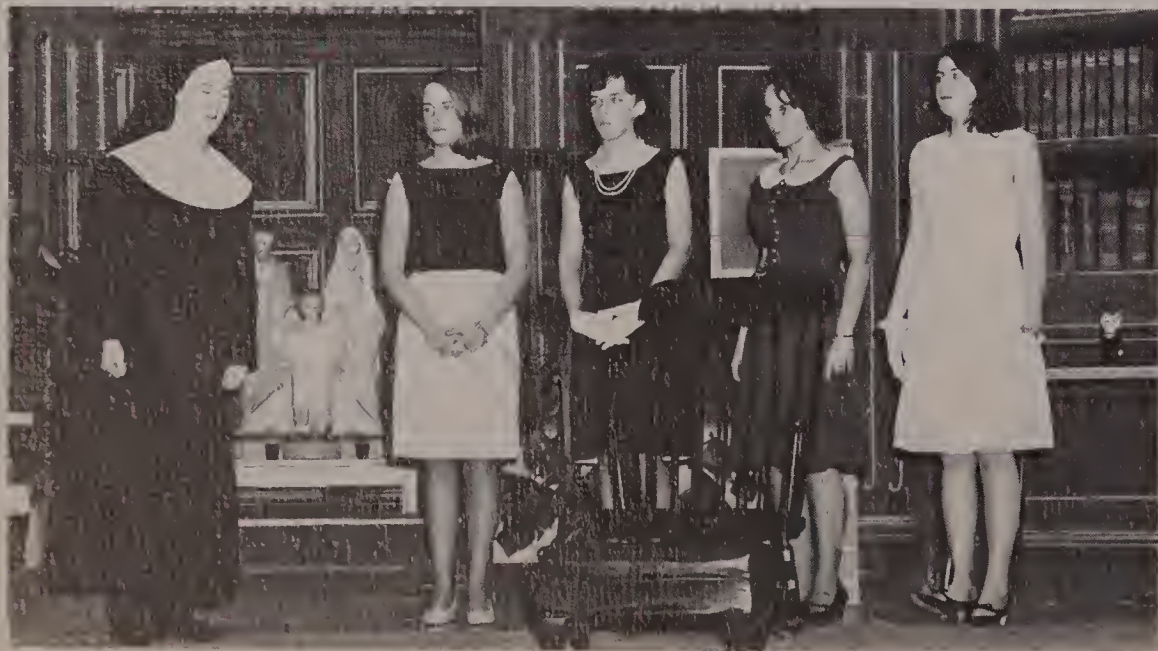

The setting of the play is the lobby of the college of St. Aurelian in the swamp country of Louisiana. One of the students, Trillium Pierce (Barbara J. Mosack) fears that the man who murdered her father has discovered she is at the school and is trying to kill her. The prime suspects are the new male additions to the faculty: Crispin Archer (Joseph T. Casey); Mr. Torveldson (Charles L. O'Neill); and Franz Eric (Robert T. Johnston). The plot thickens as a lost habit, a mysterious murder, and a heavy rainstorm combine to baffle Mother Superior (Martha M. Waisnor) and Sheriff Thatcher (Mark C. Radosta).

The fine cast kept the audience in suspense until the last minutes of the final act when Archer was exposed as the murderer.

"Uh . . . Where do you want me to put your bags?"

The murderer is captured!

Mother Superior advises the girls on good behavior.

"Oh where is that cup?"

The murderer strikes again!

"Burns, the churnman, at your service!"

An attempt is made on Trillium's life.

The Class of 1968 Presents a

Symphony of Hearts

Amidst a bevy of romantic trimmings, the Class of 1968 presented its successful contribution to the festivities of 1966 at Woburn High School — "Symphony of Hearts."

Soft shades of rose, pink, and white formed the colorful background for the dancing silhouettes which encircled the hall.

Thorough planning and creative imagination, coupled with hard work on the part of the dance committee and class officers, produced a total success for the evening. A major share of credit for a memorable evening should be given to Miss Marie Pazola, the class advisor, and to Mr. Arthur Hartung who most capably aided Miss Pazola by filling in for Mr. Peter Varoutsos who was unable to participate due to illness. Their efforts helped to make the evening the success it was.

“Michele” Murphy Sparks Women’s Faculty Team to Questionable Tie

The boys’ gym rocked with laughter and squeals of hilarity when the Girls’ Varsity Basketball Team played the women teachers (plus one) to a tie.

The highlight of the annual fund raising game was the appearance of “Miss Michele” Murphy on the teachers’ team. “Miss Murphy” drew cheers from the crowds with her great basketball ability, her graceful handling of the ball and, of course, her ravishing appearance. For her debut Miss Murphy wore an unusual blue tunic and a white ruffled petticoat to which she added the newest in accessories — glasses with built-in eyes!

Other members of the team, including the Misses Masse, Lasky, Kalinowski, Bouchie, Seminatore, Wegener and Louise Murray, did a fine (and often hilarious) job of holding the outstanding Tannerettes to a tie.

Council Activities Are Varied

Because the Student Council represents the student body, it is one of the most active and important organizations at Woburn High. Under the direction of Miss Geraldine Soles, regular monthly meetings are held in the little theater. Since the Student Council includes equal representation of freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors, a wide variety of views and suggestions are offered at the meetings.

In order to perfect our Student Council, the officers attend meetings with other schools where mutual problems are discussed. Annually delegates are sent to the model United Nations held at Boston College under the direction of the World Affairs Council.

The Student Council is responsible for many student activities. It organizes the class elections including the registration of voters. In November the council held a successful Rally-Dance which proved very enjoyable to all those who attended. The annual Mother-Daughter Dinner held on March 24, 1966, was a tremendous success. The girls and their mothers especially enjoyed the guest speaker from John Robert Powers modeling school. Charms were distributed to the girls and roses to their mothers. The Mother-Daughter Dinner was certainly a memorable event.

Topping off a varied and useful schedule are the charitable works in which the council engages, best known of which is the distribution of Christmas food baskets for the needy of Woburn.

Newspaper Introduces New Features

Increased circulation and diversity of articles has kept the staff and advisors of the school newspaper, the Sentorian, on the go all year. Room 1214 was one of the busiest in the school with regular meetings of the various staffs of the newspaper.

In response to the great popularity of the Sentorian, staff members never cease striving for improvements in the paper. This year, with the help of advisors Mr. Paul Murphy, Miss Doris Lynch, and Miss Arlene Lasky, several new features were initiated. Among these are "Guess Who", "Caught In the Act," the "Roving Reporter", the Sentorian "Medal of Honor," and the popular "It" series. "Tanner Talk" and many other favorites returned to help make this a successful and enjoyable year for our Quill and Scroll members.

New Format for NOMAD

The diligent "Nomadeers" have succeeded in creating a new look in Woburn High's literary magazine. Louise Bastoni and Robert Lloy, the highly competent editors-in-chief, along with staff editors Jeanne Giannotti, Ben Kilgore, Gerry Beecher and their staffs, worked long hours and were well rewarded by the accolades given the finished product.

The combination of excellent poems, stories, illustrations, and a new-style layout enables the NOMAD to compete with the best of school publications.

Talented writers were encouraged to submit their works in enthusiastically received poetry and short story contests, in which cash prizes were awarded. These contests and a dedicated NOMAD staff led to the publication of a top quality and professional-looking literary magazine.

Planning, Long Hours Characterize Yearbook Activity

In the spring of 1965 the staff of the 1966 INNITOU was chosen from the many enthusiastic members of our class who submitted applications. Plans for the yearbook began to unfold immediately, and upon return in September those plans began to be implemented.

Throughout the year, while the school buzzed with activities, the INNITOU staff was busy obtaining information about people and events, and photographs that would depict the many facets of life at Woburn High.

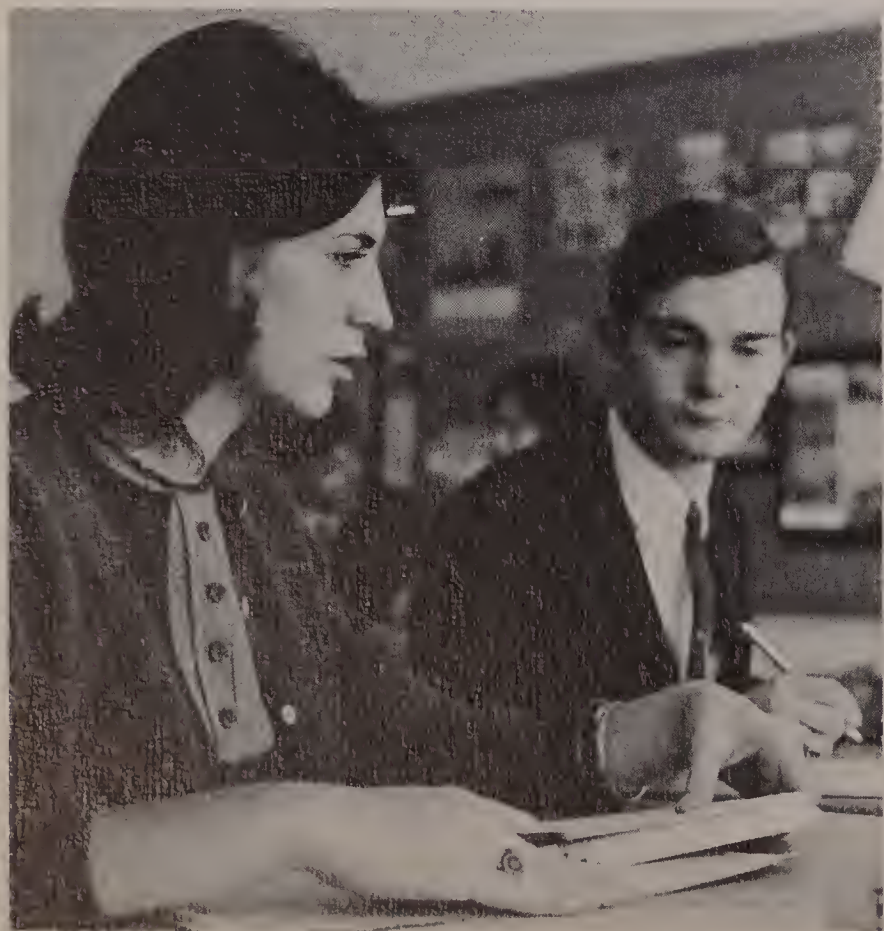

For years to come the 1966 INNITOU will be reviewed by innumerable people and will recall to them many wonderful memories of the Class of 1966.

Vital Qualities Recognized

Membership in the National Honor Society is one of the highest achievements a student can attain. The four requirements for membership are scholarship, service, leadership, and character. Miss Mary Donovan and Miss Helen Salmon are the advisors for the National Honor Society this year.

In February seven additional seniors — Elizabeth DiNardi, Arlene Dunn, Shirley Martin, Ann Marie Storti, Lawrence Miscowski, Curtis Norwood and James Wolfe — were inducted as members in this organization.

To demonstrate service to the school, the society provided the publicity for the Christmas Dance and sold refreshments at the Science Fair.

Seniors Honored by Local Organizations

Each year eight members of the graduating class are chosen as Student Representatives. The selections are made based on the students' scholastic record and extra-curricular activity.

¿Te Hablas Español?

One of the more active and successful organizations in the high school is the Spanish Club. The spirited support of its members was evidenced by the very profitable Christmas Cake Sale, and by the members' assisting the Spanish Speaking Center of Woburn at the performance of the Mexican folk dancers by selling candy and checking coats.

Highlighting a crowded agenda were speakers and films dealing with Spanish culture, panel discussions with native Spanish-speaking people, and a field trip to a Spanish restaurant.

The end of the school year will witness two of the most satisfying activities — a festive banquet, and the Class Day awards of cash prizes to the three highest ranking students of Spanish.

Aspects of German Culture Explored

Like any other language club, the purpose of the German Club is to further acquaint the student with the customs, people, and geography of the country being studied, so that he will have a better understanding of the people themselves.

Headed by Miss Louise Mackie and Mr. Ronald Lacharite, the German Club enjoyed a busy schedule this school year. Besides singing Christmas carols in German at the annual language clubs' Christmas party, and holding their regular meetings, they saw fascinating color slides of Dachau and Adolf Hitler's home. Members and guests were also shown many other color scenes taken by Mr. James Fisk during his stay in Germany.

Many Books Analyzed by Reading Club

Group discussions of books read by its members make the meetings of the Reading Club very stimulating sessions for all who attend. The Reading Club, advised by Miss Marie Butler, assembles regularly for these searching analyses of a great variety of books. The result is that club members improve their ability to understand what an author has to say and also gain insight into their own personalities. In addition, they are exposed to comments about the many works and authors which other club members have read, thus benefiting from the education of their fellow members.

Nursing Careers Examined

Girls interested in a nursing career have many opportunities to investigate their considered career through membership in the Future Nurses' Club. This group meets after school in Room 3209 with Miss Catherine Herlihy acting as Advisor.

This year the club enjoyed talks given by the school nurse, Mrs. Lillian Kearns, on her experiences as both a district and a school nurse. On another occasion, Miss Ruth Foley, a Woburn High School and St. Elizabeth's Hospital graduate, gave information on the requisites and experiences of a student nurse. A later speaker, Miss Hill, a graduate of Boston City Hospital, entranced her listeners with reports of her experiences in a large city hospital. Miss Fernandez, the Director of Everett's Whidden Hospital, reported on a typical three year course, starting with the student's interview and culminating with her graduation. An instructor from Northeastern University discussed training of and opportunities existing for medical technicians.

Perhaps the highlight of an event-filled year was a stimulating visit to the Harvard Medical Center.

By means of these activities, Woburn girls who aspire to a nursing career are aided in making their final decision.

Drama Guild Advisor, Mr. Edward LeClair.

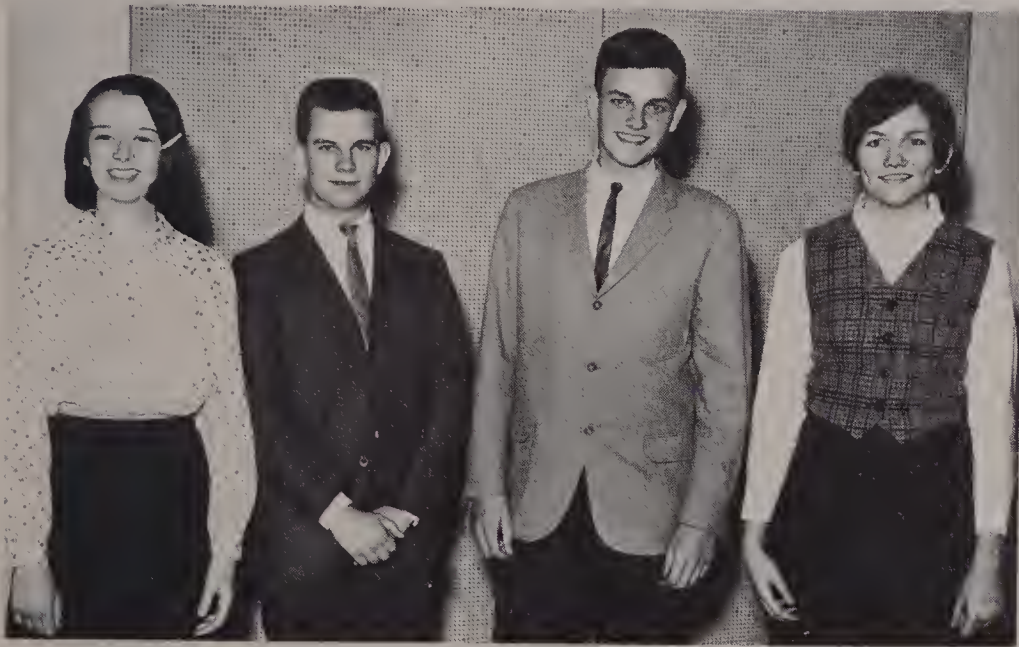

Drama Guild Gains the Spotlight

Now in its second year, the Woburn High School Drama Guild is becoming one of the school's most active organizations. The club, directed by Mr. Edward LeClair, has come a long way since its beginning last year. This is proven by the fact that about ten members of the Guild were inducted into the National Thespian Society this year.

The activities of the Guild have become most numerous and rewarding to its members. Among these activities were theater parties and the second annual One Act Play contest which was sponsored by the Guild in January. Working in close cooperation with the art department, about fifty members of the Drama Guild presented an excellent showing of three one act plays. The professional judges had a difficult decision, and the winning play was "Three on a Bench", presented by the Junior Class.

In March, thirteen young actors and actresses brought an excellent play, "The Lark", by Jean Anouilh, to the State High School Drama Festival. Their tireless efforts were well rewarded as their presentation was superb.

We are pleased to see such an active and enriching organization at Woburn High, and we wish Mr. Edward LeClair, his assistant Miss Catherine O'Brien, and the students in the Drama Guild every success. We shall be looking for them on Broadway!

DRAMA GUILD OFFICERS: Nancy Phinney, Producer, Thomas Cleaves, Director, Herb O'Brien, Stage Manager, Sue Murray, Assistant Director.

Student Artists Aid School

In order to promote greater understanding and appreciation for the world of art, the Woburn High School Art Guild holds weekly discussions on various phases of the cultural aspects of the subject. These discussions are augmented by field trips and projects.

This year, aided by the direction of Mr. Frank Newark and Mr. Ted Johnson, the members of the Art Guild, who represent all four classes at Woburn High, visited the De Cordova-Dana Museum in Lincoln. The show of abstract paintings done entirely in white was appropriately entitled, "White on White." The group also visited various other museums, and art schools in the area.

The major project of the Art Guild is the annual exhibit of student art work. Now in its second year, this exhibit is one of the most worthwhile efforts of the Guild and has merited praise and admiration from all who attended.

Service "Key" to Success

Primarily a service club, the Key Club functions under the leadership of the Kiwanis Club of Woburn and Mr. Peter Varoutsos of our faculty.

Ways of assisting the school, fellow students, and the community are ever uppermost in the minds of Key Clubbers, and the kinds of projects engaged in are limited only by the members' imagination, time, and finances.

This year the club has had a wide range of excellent guest speakers and a wide variety of informative topics, which include physical therapy, the judiciary and youth, and opportunities in the world of business.

Serving the school and the community, the club has distributed food and gift baskets to needy families during the holiday season, made a donation to and entered a float in the Lions' Halloween Parade, and checked coats and sold refreshments at all our school functions, including the reception in honor of Miss Teenage Boston.

Future Teachers President, JoAnn Larkin, presides at Induction.

Careers in Education Explored

The Future Teachers' Club is primarily concerned with helping its members familiarize themselves with the requirements, responsibilities and rewards of teaching. Every Wednesday afternoon each senior is given the opportunity to observe classes in the junior high or elementary schools. The sophomores and freshmen have worked on projects for elementary schools.

Because of the increasing number of boys interested in teaching, the club has been divided into groups — the girls under the direction of Miss Rosemary Kehoe and Mrs. Ann Bassler, and the boys under the direction of Mr. Peter Dempsey. These groups meet for the club's major activities which have included the induction ceremony, Christmas party, guest speakers, films and a spring tea for teachers.

This club proves very worthwhile to all those who plan on teaching as a career by providing some valuable information as to the variety of possible careers available in the teaching profession.

Pickles Produce Profits

The Century Club was formed this year with the purpose of developing an acquaintance, so far as time allows, with the prevalent ideas of an age, as they are reflected in the art, music, literature of the time. The century chosen this year by the students was the nineteenth.

The meetings have included speakers on history, art, music, and drama; visits to the Museum of Fine Arts and the Gardner Museum; and attendance at the Charles Playhouse production of the Inspector General.

A unique activity was a "Pickle Sale", which provided funds for other club activities.

Classical Cultures Probed

Just before Christmas the Classics Club held a raffle to raise money. The proceeds from the sale of chances on a transistor radio were used by the members to finance a trip to the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. They took a guided tour, concentrating especially on exhibits of ancient Greek and Roman culture.

The club also took a trip to Boston to see the motion picture, "The Agony and the Ecstasy," which increased their knowledge and appreciation of the culture of the Renaissance.

The Classics Club tries to interest and inform students about the art, music, literature and culture of European civilizations. The influence of these peoples on modern culture is recognized and explored.

Theory, Competition Highlight Meetings

Each Monday afternoon, the Woburn High School Bridge Club meets in room 6322 with its instructor, Mr. Matthew McNamara. At these meetings, the members learn the theory of the game as well as actually participating in the competition. By studying the theory of the game, the members learn to reveal the content of their cards to their partner in the preliminary bidding.

As well as having matches among the club members, tournaments with other high schools are part of the program. In the past, the representatives from Woburn have done very well in inter-school competition and are looking forward to further success in the coming school years.

Business Ed Juniors Assist Faculty

Working closely with teachers in an efficient and business-like manner, the Junior Assistants Club, guided by Miss Patricia Cogan, benefits both students and faculty by their services.

This club, available to junior girls in the business curriculum, gives added experience to the students in typing and duplicating. The club charges a nominal fee to teachers for typing such items as masters, tests, carbon copies, term reports and letters. In summation, the club has proven beneficial to teachers in typing their work as well as in giving the students the added training necessary in our ever-changing business world.

Requirements of Business World Investigated

What are the qualities needed to meet the requirements of the modern business world? The Business Education Club was originated to acquaint girls with the answers to these questions.

To accomplish this function the girls meet in the Little Theater for lectures, discussions, and demonstrations by experts in the field of business. In addition to this academic approach to their careers, they enjoy the visits from professionals in other areas who contribute to their pleasure as well as assist them in adjusting to the adult world.

A highlight of their program was a trip to the new Prudential Insurance Center in Boston where they toured the company facility from mail rooms to executive offices and were instructed by company personnel officers on the proper technique of the job application and interview.

Hi-Teens Aim for Self-Improvement

Fun, fancy, enchantment, excitement, and learning were the goals of the Hi-Teen Fashion Club. All senior girls taking the Home Economics course were invited to join. Throughout the year speakers from the fields of fashion and cosmetics presented programs aimed at guiding each member toward the discipline, improvement, and understanding of herself. The year was brought to an exciting climax with a field trip to the Boston Food and Nutrition Show.

Viet Nam Debate Featured

An active newcomer to Woburn High School's organizations is the Debating Society, advised by Mr. Francis Fedeale. The Society, meeting in the Little Theatre, welcomes all interested students and faculty members at its debates. Faculty members provide objective judging of the students' efforts for each presentation.

In the Public Speaking Contest, the Society presented a debate in which it ably argued both the pros and cons of the Viet Nam situation. Later in the year, the Debating Society was host to the stimulating Massachusetts Public Health Debate, in which the Society competed with other greater Boston high schools.

Scientific Interest Stimulated

SCIENCE CLUB: SEATED: Marjorie O'Neill, Secretary, Kenneth Lundquist, President, Lois Dickey, Treasurer. STANDING: Mr. Harry Marderosian, Advisor, Stephen Moore, Vice-President, Charles Callahan, Historian, Mr. Robert Cohen, Advisor.

The fundamental purpose of the Science Club is to stimulate interest and participation in the many areas of science and to foster an attitude of understanding regarding scientific knowledge, past and present. This objective is achieved by means of varied opportunities provided through discussion, observation, and investigation, enabling each individual to pursue the subject area he chooses.

The Science Club is the backbone of the Science Fair. Many of its members have been among the most articulate and successful in this activity. The club has created a most desirable climate for the entire school in the field of science. Many members of previous years have gone on to make their mark in their chosen fields. The school salutes the members and advisors of this important force.

Cultural Background Enriched

The French Club offers students the opportunity to enrich their cultural background through a deeper knowledge of the country whose language they are learning.

Activities which help to stimulate interest in the activities of the club are the annual Christmas party, dinner at a French restaurant in Boston, and guest speakers who are invited to address the group on subjects of cultural interest. Several in the club correspond with French pen-pals. Some members subscribe to the "Paris-Match" — a French pictorial magazine which gives a complete round-up of world topics — political, social, religious and scientific. Others subscribe to "Top" — a French magazine designed for teenagers which offers an opportunity for American students to learn about their contemporaries in France regarding politics, the world situation, school, humor, art, and music.

Students Plan for Medical Professions

Guided by Mrs. Carol-Sue Pine and Mr. Harry Marderosian, the Pre-Med Club, is one of the most active groups in the school. The main purpose of the club is to promote interest among students in the medical profession and related fields, such as medical technology and nursing.

At the opening meeting for the second year, Dr. George Hazel, an orthopedic surgeon, spoke to the members. The chief radiologist at Choate Memorial Hospital, Dr. Newell Burke, also spoke about careers in medicine and allied fields.

Three trips were taken this year. The first was to the Massachusetts General Hospital, the second to the Harvard Health Center in Cambridge, and the third to the Museum of Science.

A movie and a cake sale were held in conjunction with the Science Club as a fund raising endeavor. These and other activities make the Pre-Med Club a constant source of enjoyment for the members.

Interest in Russian Culture Grows

In America today, there is an increasing demand for well-trained, mature Americans having a wide-spread knowledge of the Russian language. We feel that our foreign language department is very fortunate in having a person like this, Miss Elizabeth Condon, as advisor of the Russian Club.

The Russian Club is a fast-growing activity which becomes more interesting each year. Earlier in the year, the twenty-five members participated in the Christmas party and sang Russian Christmas carols. In February the club saw Inspector General a popular Russian play by Gogol. For the information of the members, several students prepared reports on Russian culture and daily life, topics which were widely discussed. Each student is aware of the importance of the Russian people and their language. We feel sure that the Russian Club will soon become one of the most popular activities at Woburn High School.

A Russian interpretation is given to Christmas Carols.

Student Interest in Math Stimulated

The objective of the Math Club is to stimulate interest and participation in the area of mathematics. The club pursues topics which the club members choose. Among these topics are the history of mathematics and the fore-runners of computers. The meetings are marked by discussion and investigation of matters of interest to the members. The club investigates many areas of mathematics not usually covered in class and is shown the use mathematics has in many areas of science. Lectures are delivered on many subjects by students, faculty, and men currently involved in various areas of science and mathematics. The Math Club contributes to the school greatly by inspiring many to continue in mathematics and related sciences.

Musical Variety Key to Growth

The Choraleers, directed this year by Mr. Robert Hodgson has been broadened to include participation in all major student assemblies, the Public Speaking Contest, the Spring Concert, and the Black and Orange Revue. Plans for the future include more concerts and tours.

This year for the first time the Choraleers elected officers. They are: Barry Wendell, President; Jean Little, Vice-President; Elaine Champlin, Secretary; Donna Molica, Treasurer. Lynn Foster and Karen Smith were appointed librarians. These officers, together with Mr. Hodgson, helped to draw up the Choraleers' Constitution, which will govern all future business of the club.

Next year, the activity will be broadened to a full-time course. Under the name Concert Choir, this course will be open to all curricula. The group anticipates enlarging its role in the school program.

Student Support Vital to School Spirit

Believing student support to be as much an integral part of football as actual student participation, the Pep Club affords students the opportunity to aid in boosting the players' spirits in their struggle for victory. Under the competent leadership of Mr. James Foye and Miss Mary Bouchie, the club has been very active this year as a result of our improved stadium facilities. The Pep Club's faithful and worthy efforts to lend moral and vocal support to the cause of victory for Woburn High continue to be appreciated by both the players and the student body.

Variety of Activities Available to Girl Athletes

The Girls' Athletic Association has conducted numerous activities this year; including a cake sale, a faculty-student basketball game, the initiation party, a trip to the Celtics game, a track meet, and an athletic banquet. Each year the banquet brings enjoyment and excitement as the officers distribute various awards and trophies to deserving girl athletes. Due to expert planning and organization, this association has created the opportunity for every student to participate fully in organized sports plus an intramural program of contests and games.

Girls Add Spirit, Color and Enthusiasm

Our cheerleaders, the vocal backbone of our winning teams, are to be congratulated on their never ending efforts to cheer the spirits of the athletes at Woburn High.

This year a new look was added to our already attractive cheerleaders. The uniform style of the squad has acquired a collegiate look. Sweaters and skirts have taken the place of the customary jumper. However, behind the energetic appearance and gay enthusiasm of the cheerleaders are hours of endless practice sessions to perfect their cheering performances.

As important to the enthusiasm and spirit displayed at athletic events, rallies and parades are the Majorettes, Emblem Bearers, and Color Guard. Like the cheerleaders, the Majorettes devote many hours to the practice and the perfection of their routines. They are certainly to be commended for their agility and talent.

The Emblem Bearers, who also have new sweater and skirt uniforms, and the Color Guard with their brass-buttoned uniforms always make a striking appearance when leading school rallies and parades.

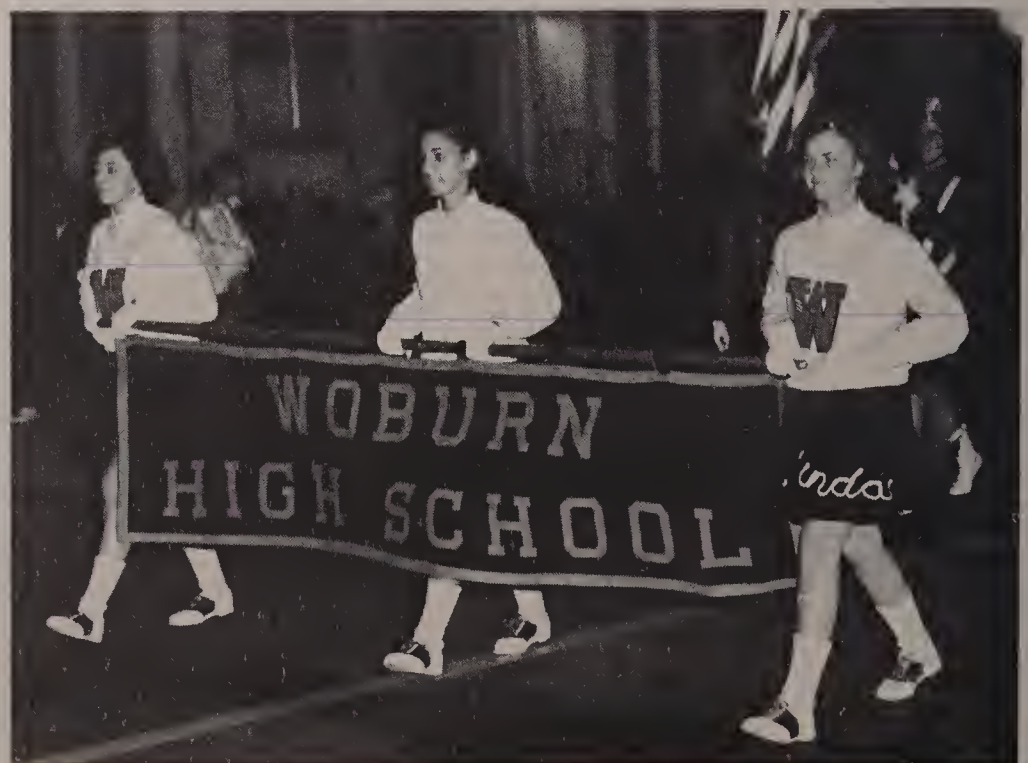

We can well be proud of our attractive girls who have never failed to arouse abounding enthusiasm and spirit.

Band's Repertoire Diversified

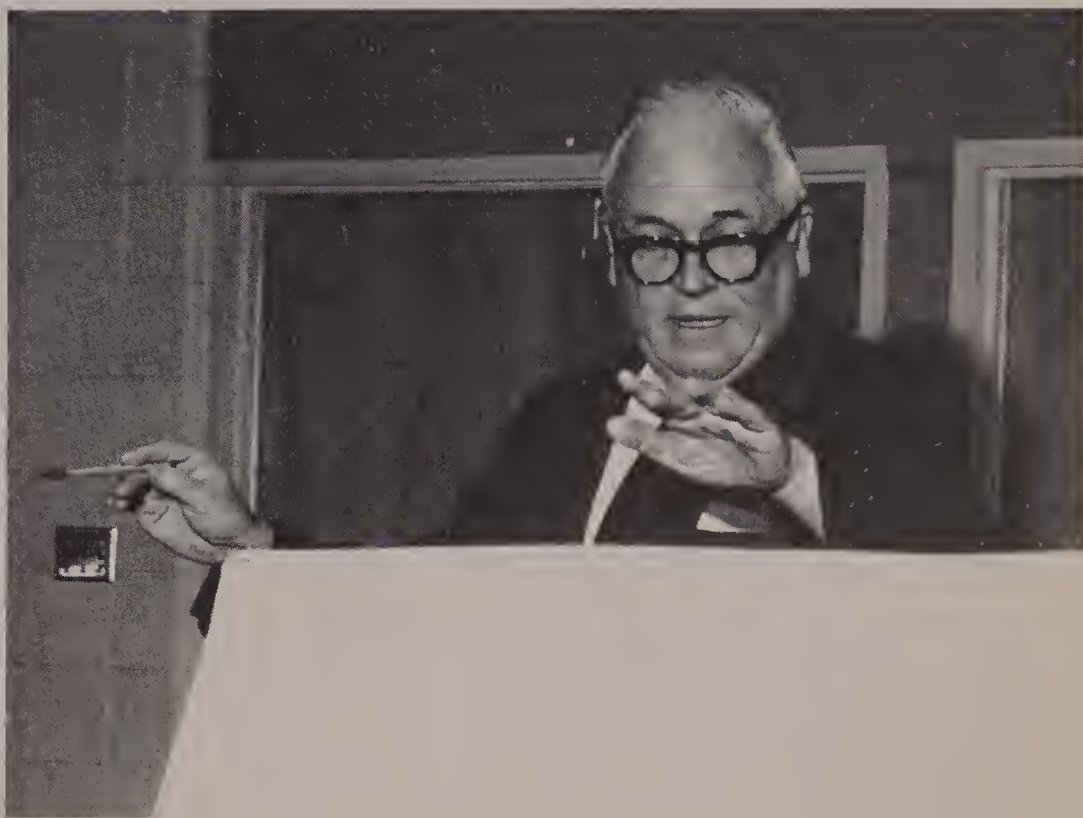

Inspired by the baton of Mr. Edson L. Kimball, the Woburn High School Band added superlative musical background and accompaniment for innumerable school activities. With a new selection of popular tunes, the band entertained the fans and inspired the team throughout the football season. Parades, the Music Festival, and the Spring Concert, in which they performed many classics, are just a few of the many activities where the band has added to the prestige of Woburn High. A wide variety of music ranging from Bach's Prelude and Fugue in D minor, Ketelbey's "In a Persian Market" to "Little Bop Riding Hood" and the selection from "Gigi" was featured at the Spring Concert.

Orchestra Contributes Greatly to School Activities

Mr. Edson L. Kimball, working tirelessly with the orchestra, has helped the members perfect their musical skills. Musical entertainment provided by the orchestra was enjoyed at assemblies, Class Day, the Senior Play and many other events. The orchestra is a segment of the music department of which we are justly proud. Sparkling new arrangements of "Under Paris Skies", "Moonlight Serenade" and "Birth of the Blues" were tingling numbers enjoyed by students and parents alike.

Success and Frustration Mark Football Season

In an emotionally varied season, Tanner players and fans knew what it was like to be plunged into deep despair, rise to heights of euphoria, and to conclude the season with a frustrating stalemate — always hounded by second guessings and might have beens.

Woburn spotted Newburyport to a 12-0 halftime lead and fought back, but was not able to upset the Clippers. With Greene passing mostly to Lavacchia, Woburn dominated the second half, but could not make the big play. Throughout the game, Woburn's stalwart defense kept Newburyport from running away with the contest, but the offense was frustrated in its efforts to score the winning touchdown.

The good fortune we lacked in the Newburyport game was with us in our defeat of Swampscott, 28-26. Greene had a fine offensive afternoon, completing eight passes on fourteen attempts and running for 53 yards.

With two minutes left to play, we trailed 26-14, but surged back, taking advantage of inept Swampscott punting and centering. One touchdown resulted when an errant punt bounced off a blocking back; on a second occasion, a poor center sent the ball sailing over the punter's head. Woburn scored each time. Defense and offense shared the accolades resulting from this hair-raiser.

Our Thanksgiving Day hassel with Winchester produced many second-thoughts, but no tallies. Both teams had several scoring chances, but each was unable to capitalize on them and the adverse field conditions hampered both quarterbacks and runners. Tanner end, Joe Doto, prevented what looked like Winchester's only touchdown when he tackled Paul Eaton from behind after Eaton had scampered 54 yards.

Teeth-gnashers and those with coronary weakness will not forget the closing minutes. Operating from a spread formation, Winchester had a receiver, clear, in the end-zone only to have him loose the ball in the glare of the sun. The Tanners were fortunate to emerge with a tie.

In summation, supporters witnessed a light, highly-spirited, well-drilled football squad play better than expected on some Saturdays, and less skillfully than desired on others.

Record Reflects Lack of Height

Our varsity basketball team completed a difficult twenty game schedule. In addition to the fourteen games in the Northeastern Conference, Woburn played a host of strong Middlesex League teams, including Lexington, Melrose, Reading, Winchester, and Belmont. These teams, however, proved to be too strong for the local hoopsters.

It was hoped that last year's record could be matched, but due to a lack of a balanced scoring attack and the inability to match the broad strength of opposing teams, Woburn's hopes were dimmed. The Tanners produced only four victories in league competition.

Fred Sankus and Bill Chebba, both seniors, were this season's co-captains. Chebba was the club's scoring mainstay, other seniors who saw considerable action were Chuck Greene, Joe Doto, Dan Foley and Peter Haggerty.

In the league standings, Danvers and Winthrop were the title contenders, followed by a new entry, Gloucester. Then came Swampscott, Newburyport and Woburn, with Marblehead and Amesbury holding down cellar positions.

Juniors Bill Lavacchia, Jim Gaffney and Tom Contalonis all gained valuable game experience this year and could form the nucleus of a much improved team. Ed Doherty, a high jumping junior also figures prominently in next year's plans, as well as George Bradley, William O'Keefe, and sophomore Ken White.

Skaters Experience a "Building Year"

Our hockey team looked as though it was going to have a fine season because of the return of five lettermen, but the team was unable to place high in the standings due to the lack of talented manpower and occasional mental lapses.

Goalies Tom McHugh and Bob Johnston both played several fine games. Co-captains Jim Danehy and Ed Gillis, along with Joe McDonough, all played spirited hockey throughout the season.

Several younger players contributed much to the team. Sophomore Jim Dwyer and Junior Ted Dascoli proved to be the most frequent lamp-lighters for Woburn. They showed themselves to be equal to any opponents. Sophomores Steve Bevins, Pete Krea and Dave Lentz also saw some action.

Experienced observers term this season a building year. Seniors provided guidance and example for many of the less experienced skaters. In a league loaded with talented sextets, Woburn provided creditable opposition, and with experienced, spirited underclassmen, hockey enthusiasts anticipate a satisfying season to come.

Many Veterans on Diamond Squad

Varsity Coach Paul K. Sweeney's hopes for a successful baseball season in 1966 were satisfied. Talented and hustling veterans meshed with spirited and conscientious younger players to produce a daring brand of baseball that was a treat to watch.

During early practices, Coach Sweeney welcomed a surplus of talented infielders that allowed him to manipulate personnel until a competent outfield trio was assembled.

Having had varsity experience, catchers Richard Garrity, John O'Reilly, and Charles Greene; first basemen Peter Politakis and Dan Delorey; second basemen John Cuneo and John Morandi; shortstops Jim Murphy and Bill Lavacchia; third baseman Joe Doto and pitchers Jerry Gorrasi and Ed Gillis provided the nucleus of a talented and exciting ball club.

Lack of Depth Hurts Trackmen

The indoor track team completed its season with a record of one win and seven losses. Woburn was unable to win because it could not pick up the necessary points in crucial situations, due to lack of manpower.

We had a fine representation. There was Jim Murphy in the 50, Co-captain Bill Faria in the 300, Joe Kaknes and Pete Newman in the 600, Co-captain Paul Starbile and Jerry Surette in the 1,000, and Paul Devlin in the mile. Woburn also had Bob Jones in the high jump, John McPhee and Bill Magee in the shotput and Richie Day in the hurdles.

Cross-Country Team

Has Surprising Record

On the opening day of school in September, forty candidates for the Cross-Country Team reported to Coach Austin Garvey for physical exams and conditioning. Since only three lettermen were returning, it was expected that 1965 would be a year devoted to developing new runners.

As the course is two and one-half miles long, a very extensive training program was initiated, with the boys running an average of eight to ten miles per day. Sacrifice and effort brought forth reward. The team won five events and lost only two.

Fortunately for next season, the difference between a winning and a losing season were freshman and sophomore runners Joe Kaknes, who finished fourteenth in the State Meet, Gerry Surette, and Bruce Blackman. Gordon Sevene, a freshman, developed into one of the team's best runners. These returnees, coupled with the return of Daniel Peterson and Richard Day, should compensate for the loss of seniors Jim Danehy, Bob Jones, John Ficociello and others.

Carry-over Value of Golf Stressed

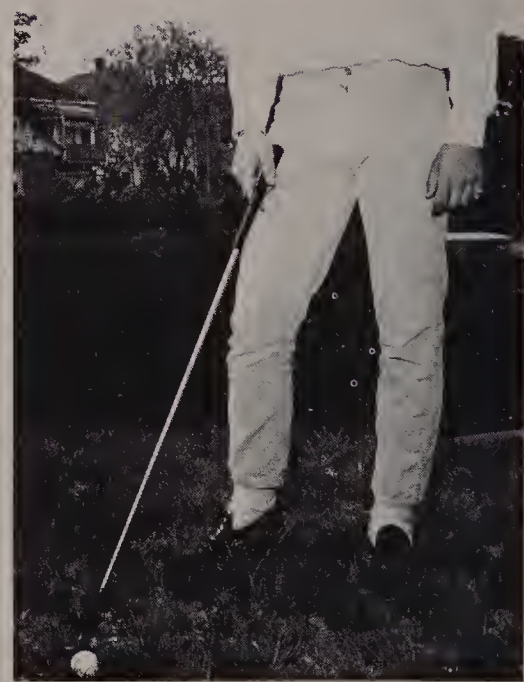

Golf has the greatest carry-over value of any sport played in the high school. Unlike most sports which require special aptitude or refined physical requirements, golf is a sport that can be enjoyed by anyone and could fill many pleasurable leisure hours throughout adult life.

This year's linksmen added impressively to the previous two years' record of twenty wins and eight losses — a remarkable record which makes the team the winningest interscholastic team of the past three years. The teams' record is more impressive when one considers that the team has few formal practice sessions; individual instruction being the principle method of coaching.

As an adjunct to the competitive part of the season, members of the varsity squad assist Mr. Francis Fedeles, the coach, in conducting a Golf Club, open to all, which instructs interested students in the fundamentals of the sport.

Participation in Field Hockey Increases

Under the direction of Coach Geraldine Wegener, our field hockey team was divided this year into varsity and junior varsity teams to satisfy the expressed enthusiasm of the underclassmen. The team ended the season with a record of only four wins, five losses, and one tie, but should be congratulated for its enthusiastic efforts, under team captain Paula Groom, against such formidable opponents as Swampscott, Winchester, and Lynnfield.

Miss Wegener expresses confidence for a winning season next year with returning goalie Elaine Martello and varsity freshmen Marilyn Keeley and Lorraine Roche. There is also proof of potential in upcoming freshmen whose skill produces hopeful outlooks for the next few seasons.

Tannerettes Have Successful Season

Seven wins and two losses marked the end of a very successful season for the Girls' Basketball Team, due mainly to the high scoring of Jean Cantillon, Janice Franson, and Maureen Logue. The defense was handled effectively by Chris Peary, Nancy Paul, and Meg Higgins, the offense was equally effective with Mary Finn, Margaret Short, and Faith Milonas.

One of the thrilling events which marked this year's season was the overtime game with Concord. After an apparent Concord victory, the Tannerettes retired to the locker room, only to be recalled to the court when an error in scoring had been discovered. The game ended with a 23-21 victory for Woburn.

Although Margaret Short and Maureen Logue will retire this year, Coach Marie Seminatore predicts an "undefeated season" next year.

Competition Improves Net Game

Enthusiasm, skill and hours of practice have provided Woburn High School with a talented team. Captain Kathy Langley and first and second single stars, Marjorie O'Neil and Faith Milonas, gave Woburn's tennis fans much to cheer about throughout the season. This year, as well as last year, the players improved their style by participating in the "Ladder Tournament," a device whereby each player was allowed to challenge another "top rung" player. This method of competitive practice has proven beneficial to the success of the team.

Several Seniors Make Final Diamond Appearance

Ably led by Miss Marie Seminatore softball has become one of the most popular girls' sports at Woburn High. Four home games and five games away presented a challenging schedule for the 1966 season but the girls welcomed the opportunity to test their mettle. The softball teams of Danvers, Cambridge Latin, Swampscott, Burlington and Wakefield were all aware of the keen competitive spirit and the good sportsmanship of the Woburn girls. Making their final appearance were seniors Beth McDonough, Paula Groom, Jackie Freitas and Carol Torrice.

Margaret Short takes a throw at second base.

KNEELING: Barbara McDonough, Paula Groom, Mary Finn, Jacqueline Freitas, Beth McDonough, Judith Spencer, STANDING: Coach

Marie Seminatore, Ann Mercurio, Virginia Kenney, Molly Higgins, Meg Higgins, Margaret Short, Carole Torrice, Elaine Martello.

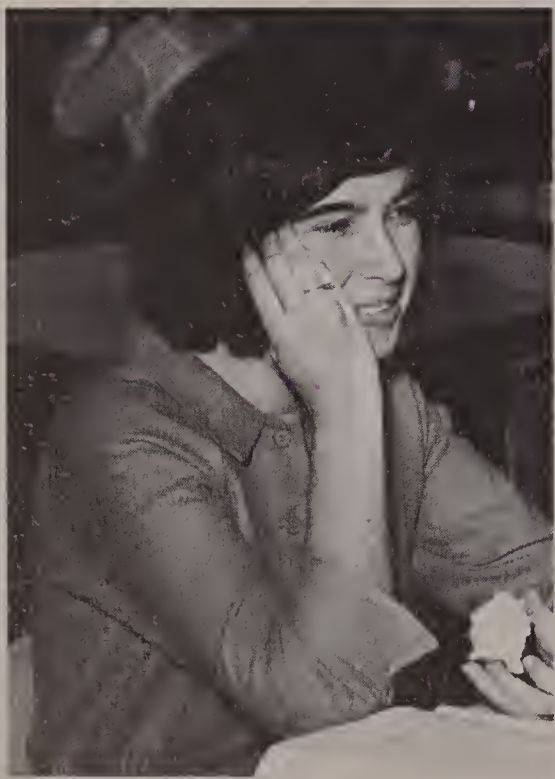

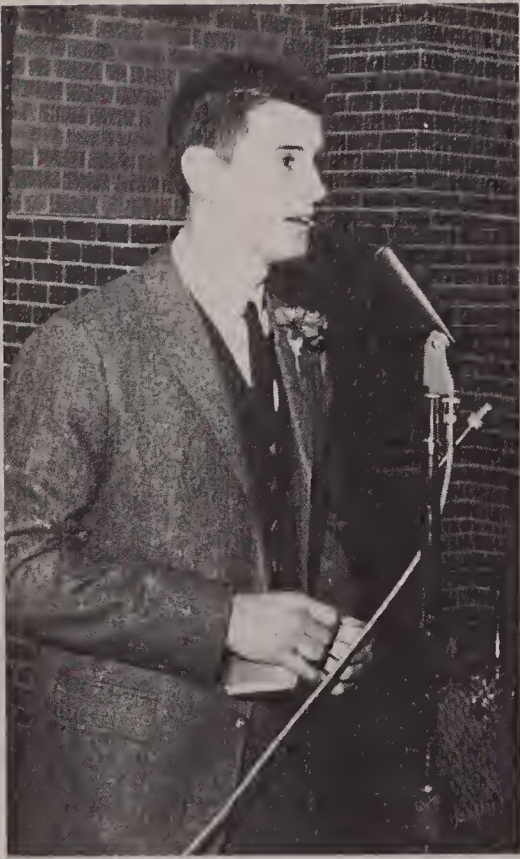

Elaine Martello delivers the ball.

Beth rounds third and heads for home.

In Memoriam

William R. Marcus
June 2, 1948 — May 23, 1964

Our memories of our early high school days will always include visions of the gay smile, the vivacious laughter, and the wonderful personality that were "Buzz." We cherish having known him, and we will always feel the loss of one of our dearest, most promising and most respected friends.

Acknowledgements

As our theme, "The Many Faces of Woburn High", implies; Woburn High School takes on many different faces. Most important of all, we feel, is the face of accomplishment — accomplishment both in and out of school. As the Class of 1966 finds its Senior year coming to an end, we wish each member good luck and God-speed.

It is the hope of all of us on the Yearbook Staff that we have been able to impart a glimpse of some of the moments that comprised our high school careers. We sincerely hope our efforts have been worthwhile. To the many individuals who have devoted their time and talents to our purpose, we now wish to extend our heartfelt thanks.

First of all, we wish to express our gratitude to the Warren Kay Vantine Studio which has aided immensely through their excellent work on portraits and candids. For the skillful photography of Jack Kelly and Bob O'Hanian, and the able, courteous assistance of Mrs. Camille Johnson, we extend our grateful appreciation.

Next, to the American Yearbook Company, for publication of this volume, and to Mr. Richard Weir, our helpful yearbook consultant, we wish to give a special "thank you".

Thirdly, we cannot feel anything but deep gratitude for the co-operation and publicity the Woburn Daily Times has given us. Its news articles and photographs used on our behalf have been of immense help in our annual patron and advertising drive and in acquainting the public with our yearbook.

To the Administration and Faculty goes our next expression of gratitude for their co-operation throughout the year. The unselfish work of Mr. Frank Newark, our advisor on art work, and Mr. William Hosmer, who has so ably taken up the task of acting in the absence of Miss Dunsford by aiding the literary staff, will always be remembered and appreciated.

We wish to acknowledge the hard work and dedication of the staff members themselves. We express our deep appreciation to co-editors Barry Wendell and Ellin Kaknes whose leadership and organization co-ordinated all our efforts in making this yearbook a reality. A sincere "thank you" also goes to Billy Sullivan, Judy Dolan, and Kathy Sullivan, who spent many long hours and gave generously of their time to work on complicated page lay-outs.

Most of all, the yearbook staff wishes to tender our thanks to our Advisor, Mr. Joseph F. Curran, Jr. His example of never-ending patience, assistance, and persistence will always live in the hearts of those who have worked under him.

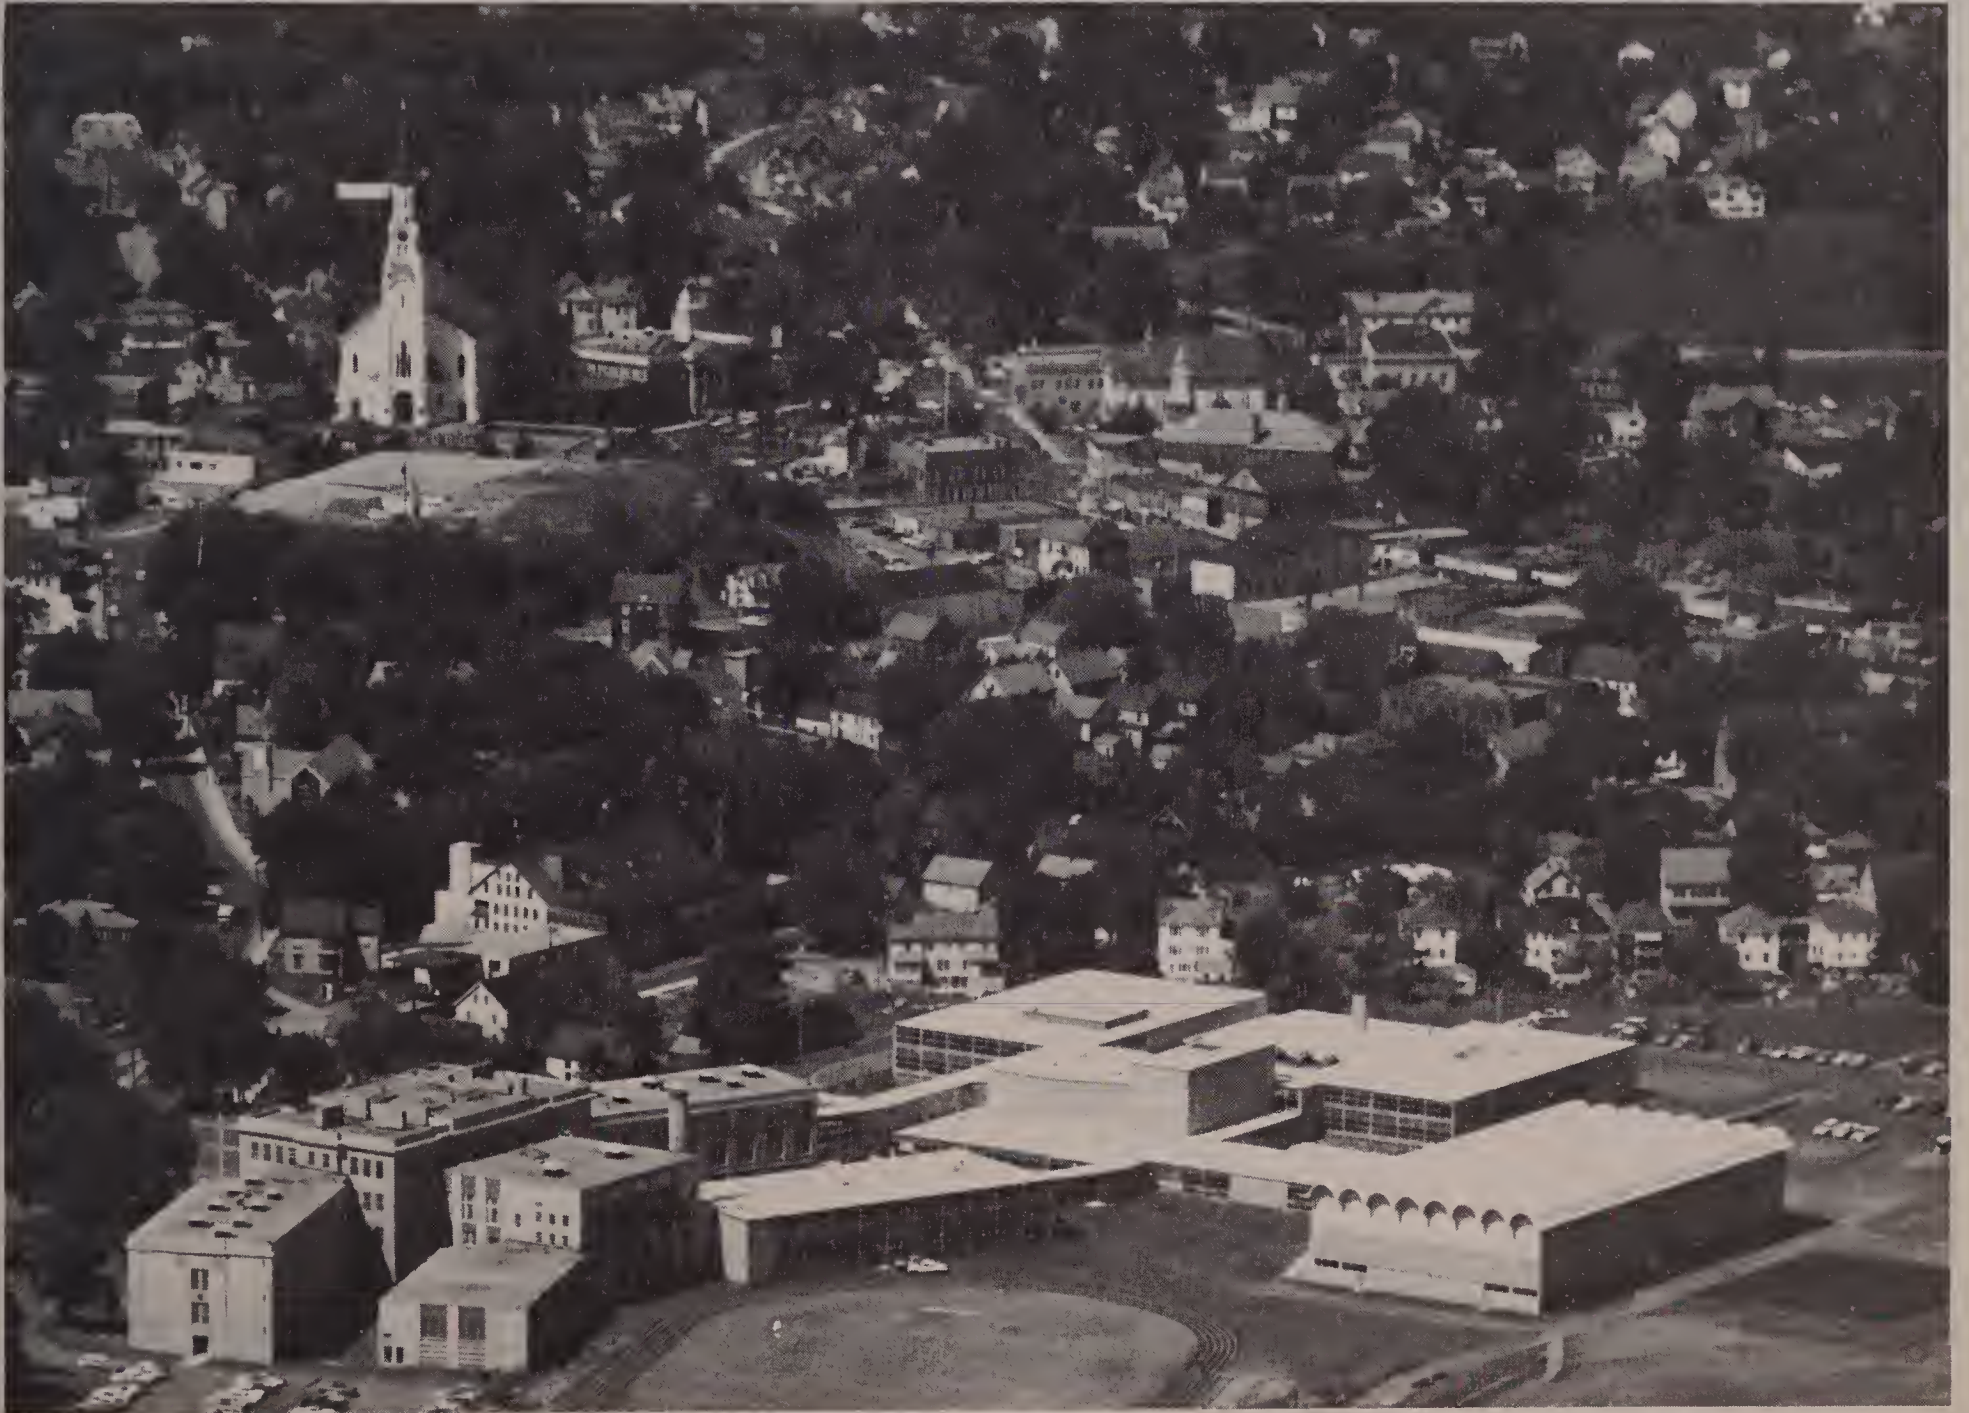

Last, but not least, we acknowledge the solid support of the citizens and business community of Woburn for their generosity during our annual Patron and Advertising Drive, and to the students of Woburn High School who were instrumental in making this, the 1966 INNITOU, a reality.

The Faces of Dependability and Co-operation

Patrons and Advertisements

Our city has many generous contributors who have helped to make our yearbook a reality. We are proud to be a part of this community.
